Inspirational Person of the Month

Royce Amy Morales, 56, owns two businesses in the South Bay — Harmony Works, a unique retail shop and gallery specializing in made-by-hand, earth sensitive, soul-nurturing items (art, crafts, body products, books, music, jewelry, baby care and clothing, candles, etc.) by artisans from all over the United States as well as local artists. Go to: www.harmony-works.com to get an insight as to how Harmony Works feels!

Royce's other business is Perfect Love Awakening, a spiritual and personal development center offering classes and seminars to assist people in discovering their passion, purpose and power by giving tools and methods to resolve fears and inner blocks. There is also the PLA Teacher Training Program that trains others to teach the PLA information and methodology. She has been doing this since 1977. Go to: www.placlasses.org for more information on the PLA Program.

What type of challenges have you been faced with?

Regarding Harmony Works: I have experienced that educating and motivating the public about the importance of supporting the arts as well as purchasing earth-friendly items is always a challenge!

Regarding Perfect Love Awakening: I have chosen to keep the classes small and intimate in order to deeply facilitate each person's inner journey. The other biggest challenge is dealing with the profound fears and untrue notions that people have about doing inner spiritual work!

What was your turning point that helped you overcome the challenges:

When I realized that spiritual understanding had become more "mainstream" with people such as Oprah using with spiritual jargon, as well as the mass acceptance of such films as "The Secret," I knew it was time to allow what I have to teach to expand. What I offer is very unique and not found in any spiritual work I have seen or read about, and I feel as though it was a gift to me to share it... but the timing needed to be "right" and it seems as though it is time!

The same is true about my shop — this sudden "craze" where people are actually concerned with being earth friendly in their lives is allowing my business to be accepted on more mainstream levels. Gee, I am sure always ahead of my time!!

Where did the inspiration to succeed arrive from?

I have always had a very deep inner sense of having something important to express — a gift that was given that needed to be shared or would be lost. I have felt this way my entire life!

What has your support system consisted of?

My amazing husband who is also my business partner at Harmony Works and my muse, sounding board, and shoulder to cry on!

Any advice for our South Bay Woman readers?

Never, never give up! If you sense that something is your passion, your purpose, your dream, go for it no matter what the world says, no matter how crazy it seems and no matter how difficult it may be. Staying committed is the power that allows for miracles to occur. Doing what I do has been the most amazingly "growthful" rollercoaster ride and I wouldn't trade it for anything!

What is the best advice you have been given?

No matter what it looks like, what it seems like, or what it feels like, if what you are doing comes from a pure, loving place inside of you, it is what you were meant to do and will always work and always be supported. I don't know exactly who gave me that advice but it is a spiritual "truism" that I live my life by.

Any advice for women going through a difficult time?

See above! Hang in there! Trust! Ask for help... it is amazing what happens when you are willing to ask! And, look deep inside to discover any self-sabotaging that might be the culprit getting in the way of success!
